site:.uk: Limits the search results to websites that have the .uk domain, which means the websites are from the United Kingdom.

intitle:login: Finds pages where the word "login" appears in the title of the page.

<title>Login</title>

In HTML, the title of a web page is set using the `<title>` tag. This title appears in the browser tab. So, when you search for `site:.uk intitle:login`, you're looking for UK websites where the word "login" is in this `<title>` tag. This helps you find login pages on those sites.

site:.uk intitle:index of site:vulnweb.com intitle:index of

This phrase is often used for pages that list files or folders on a website. So, this search helps you find pages that show a list of files or directories, which can sometimes be found by accident.

Google search results for `site:uk intitle:index of` and `site:vulnweb.com ntitle: index of`.

Showing results for `site:vulnweb.com ntitle: index of`. Search instead for `site:vulnweb.com ntitle: index of`.

Apache Server at vm-wwwhomes.doc.ic.ac.uk Port 443

address:osint

Google search results for `address:tesla.com`.

Results include:

- Tesla: https://www.tesla.com/en_au/contact Contact | Tesla Australia Contact us for product support, roadside assistance, first responders information, employment opportunities and office locations.

The query `address:tesla.com` is an attempt to use a search operator to find information related to the domain `tesla.com`. However, `address:` is not a valid or recognized Google search operator, so Google just treated it as a regular search and returned results related to Tesla's contact information.

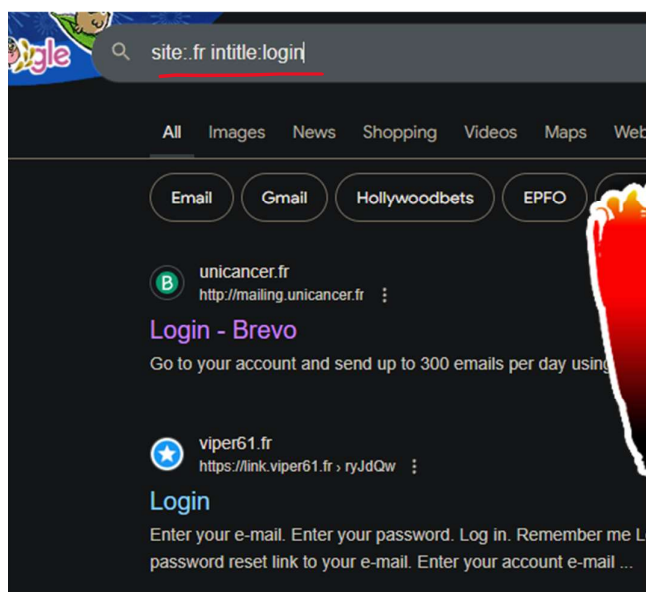

Google search results for `site:.fr intext:login`.

Results include:

`site:.fr`: This limits the search results to websites with the .fr domain, which are usually French websites.

`intext:login`: This searches for pages that contain the word "login" somewhere in their text.

VS

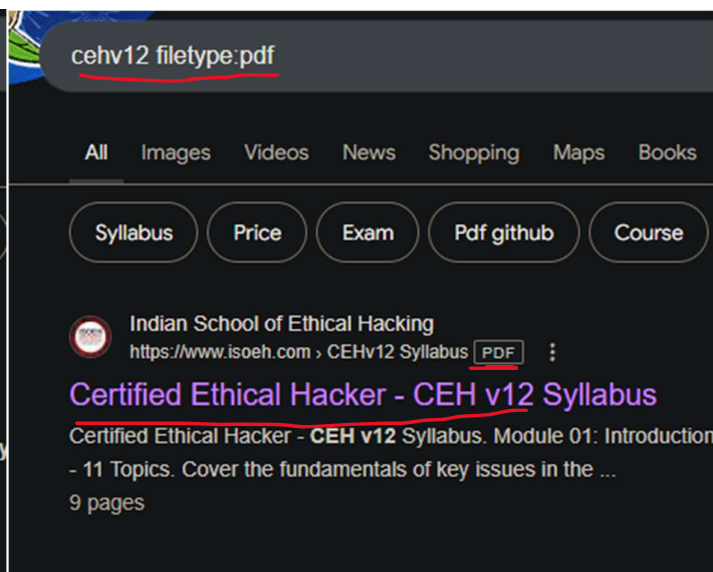

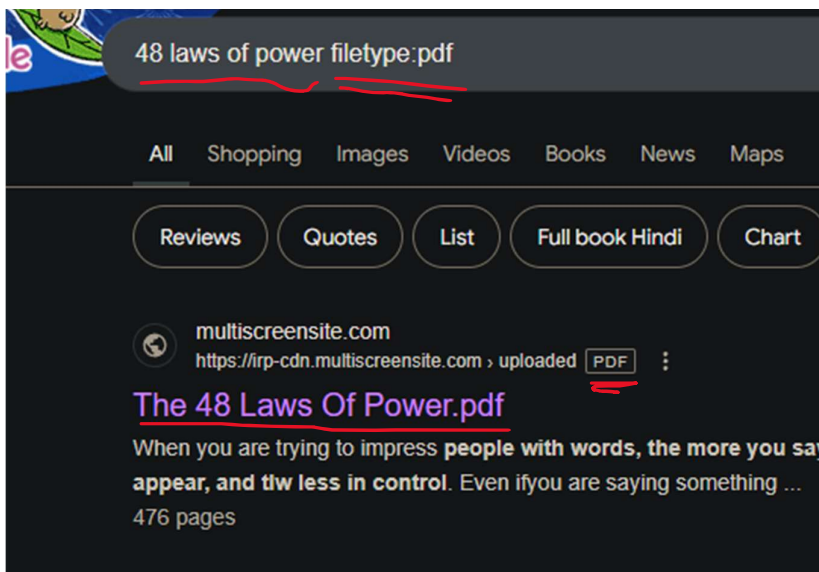

intitle:login: Searches for pages that have the word "login" specifically in the title of the page on French websites (site:.fr).

intext:login: Searches for pages that have the word "login" anywhere in the text on French websites (site:.fr).

The main difference is where the word "login" appears: in the page content (intext) or in the page title (intitle).

How to use filetype: operator cehv12: Searches for pages containing the term "cehv12," likely referring to a version of the Certified Ethical Hacker (CEH) v12 course or materials.

filetype:pdf: Limits the search results to PDF files only.

So, this search will return PDF documents related to "cehv12."

Here are some common filetype operators you can use with Google search to find specific types of files:

File Type	Search Operator	Description
PDF	filetype:pdf	Portable Document Format
DOC/DOCX	filetype:doc or filetype:docx	Microsoft Word document
XLS/XLSX	filetype:xls or filetype:xlsx	Microsoft Excel spreadsheet
PPT/PPTX	filetype:ppt or filetype:pptx	Microsoft PowerPoint presentation
TXT	filetype:txt	Plain text file
CSV	filetype:csv	Comma-separated values file
HTML	filetype:html	Hypertext Markup Language file (web page)
XML	filetype:xml	Extensible Markup Language file
RTF	filetype:rtf	Rich Text Format
MP3	filetype:mp3	Audio file
MP4	filetype:mp4	Video file
JPG/JPEG	filetype:jpg or filetype:jpeg	Image file
PNG	filetype:png	Image file
GIF	filetype:gif	Image file
ZIP	filetype:zip	Compressed archive file
RAR	filetype:rar	Compressed archive file
APK	filetype:apk	Android application package
EPUB	filetype:epub	eBook file
PSD	filetype:psd	Adobe Photoshop file
SVG	filetype:svg	Scalable Vector Graphics file
JSON	filetype:json	JavaScript Object Notation file
SQL	filetype:sql	SQL database file

Link Operator

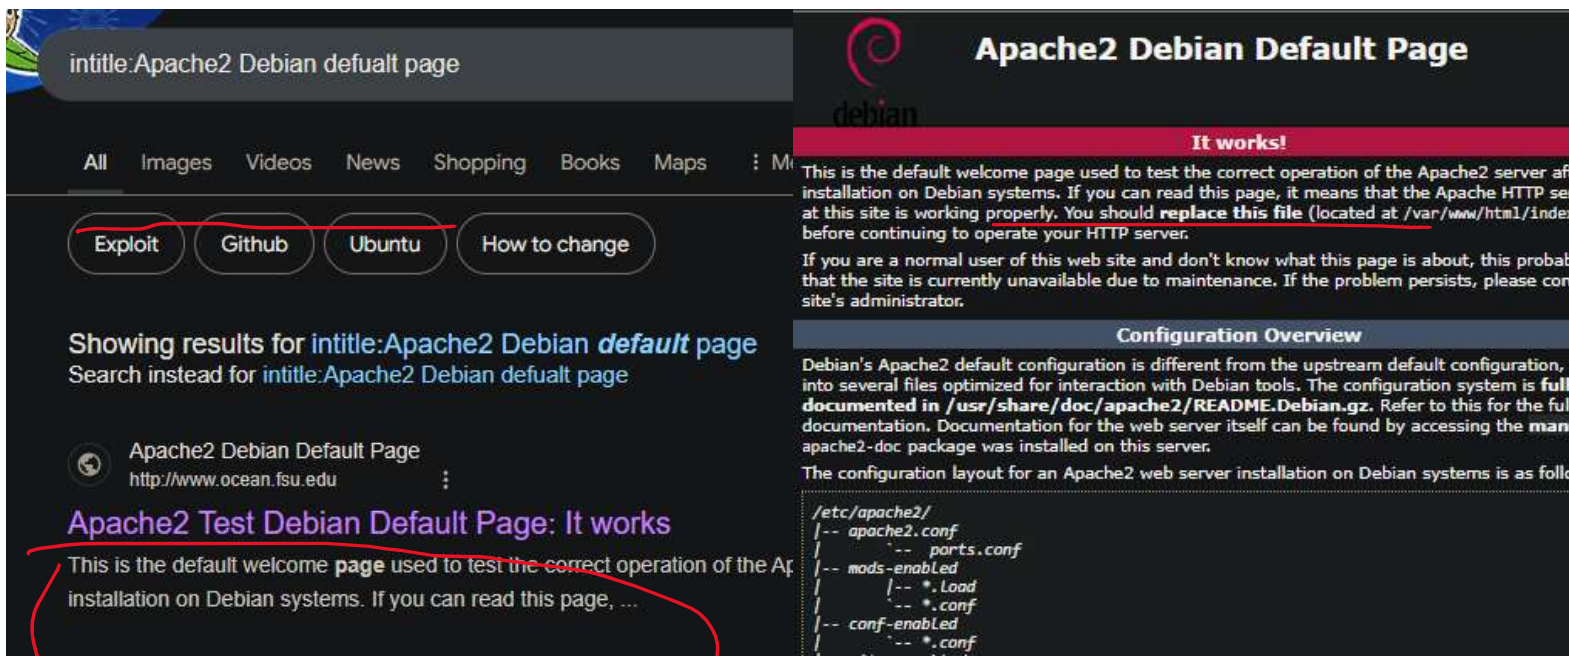

The `'link:'` operator helps you find websites that have a link to a specific webpage.

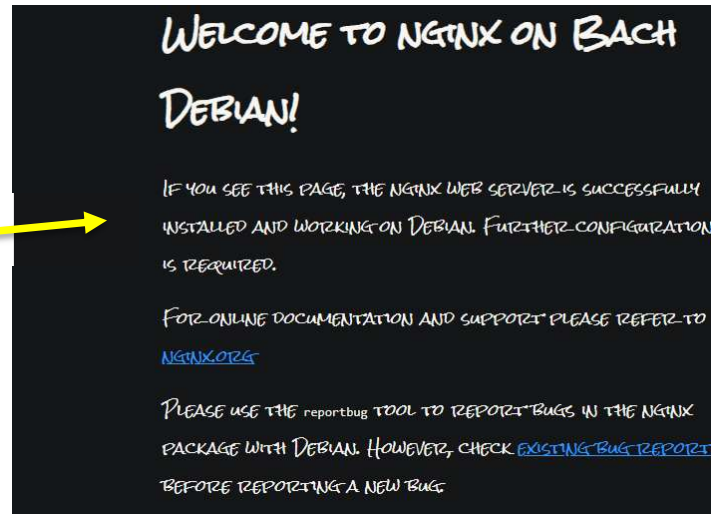

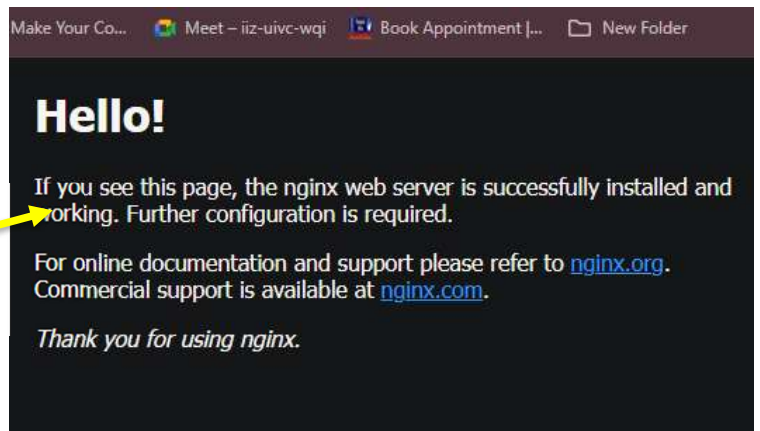

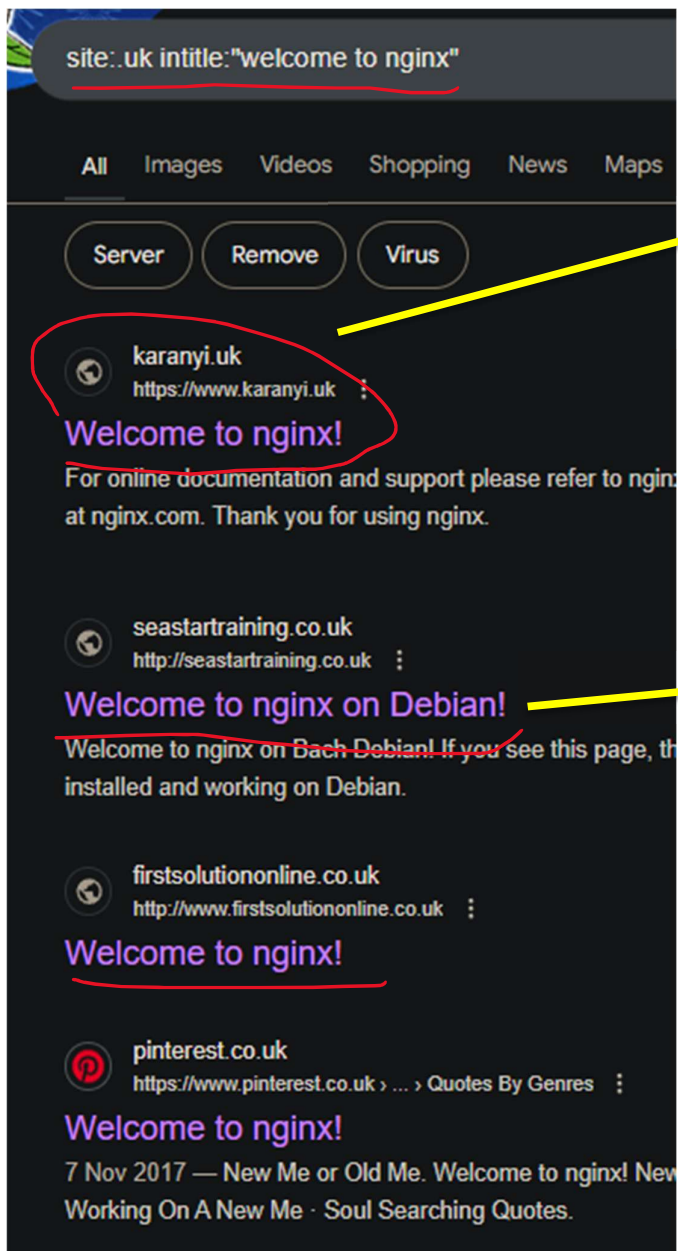

For example, if you search `'link:escanav.com'`, you'll see a list of other websites that have a clickable link to `'escanav.com'`.

It's like asking Google, "Who is talking about this webpage?" and it shows you all the websites that are doing so. subdomain

In simple terms, this search helps you find websites that are using Apache on Debian but haven't finished setting up their site yet. intitle:Apache2 Debian default page

The search query `site:.uk intitle:"welcome to nginx"` looks for websites with the default Nginx welcome page on `.uk` domains. This default page indicates that a developer may have forgotten to replace or secure it, leaving the site potentially vulnerable to exploitation.

intitle: "index of" inurl:git

The search query `intitle:"index of" inurl:git` helps find web pages that show a list of files and folders, with "git" in the URL. This often means the page might be showing files from a Git repository, which could be accidentally exposed and contain sensitive information.
